Guidelines for Enrolling in More Than 18 Hours

The normal course load for undergraduate students varies from 12-18 hours. A student may request an overload of up to 3 hours (total load of 21 hours). The student is responsible for all fees associated with the course overload. The student requesting the overload must have a cumulative grade point average of 3.0. In rare instances and on a case by case basis, a student who has less than a 3.0 GPA may be granted permission to take 19 hours.
